Legal Department.

The view taken in paragraph 2 of E.D. office note at page 27 that a notification is not quite necessary under section 38 of the Act is correct. Since it is also proposed to give discretion to the District Legal Boards and authorised municipalities in Gujarat to select either of the series, which not covered by section 38, the flexible course would be in the power is a G.R. in the matter. There is no objection to the text of the G.R. being published in the Bombay Government Gazette for the information of the public.

2. The G.R. at page 61 of the correspondence section, as amended, is in order. The word "Gujarat" has not been legally defined and may be replaced by the words "Northern Division".

GJT: 23.6.4 a.

Office of the Re[illegible]

Under the Bombay Primary Education (Second Amendment) Act, 1949 (Bombay Act No.XLVI of 1949) section 10A has been inserted in the Bombay Primary Education Act, 1947. Section 10A provides that in any district for which a district local board has not been established, the powers and duties of the district local board under the Act shall be exercised and performed by such authority as the State Government may appoint. As will be clear from the marginal note of the section the authority so appointed takes the place of the school board. This section enables the State Government to appoint an Advisory Committee in a district where a District Local Board is not established and to give directions in respect of the exercise of the powers and performance of the duties under the Act by such Committees. The Advisory Committees, when appointed under this section would become statutory bodies. These bodies will under section 10A, exercise the powers and perform duties of a District School Board and are for all practical purposes district school boards. However, in view of the provisions of section 10A, the Advisory Committees will be eligible to take part in the election under section 58, provided they are appointed under section 10A and included in rule 171 of the Primary Education Rules.
